

Help

They've blindfolded me. I've dropped my mobile. They bundled me into a car. We got on a train. I fell asleep. Was woken by a loudspeaker announcing "Gare de Lyon".

They pushed me onto a boat, probably hidden under a big bridge - sounds of cars, horns and traffic from above... Then the engine started and the noise faded away. I felt the sun on my skin. Intermittently.

Maybe the shadow cast by other bridges, I counted six altogether. And in the meantime we changed course to the right.

The engine must have driven us for nearly ten minutes.

We moored and soon after they pushed me through an open space... Sounds of a fountain, people shouting, the noise of ambulances,... I clearly heard a man answering ... Concorde is 5 metro stops away, I don't know why.

We walked quickly across this open space, the sound of the fountain fell and then rose again, perhaps it was a square with two fountains at each end.

Shouts like a metro stop. Then the earth shook under my feet. We took a street that was not very wide and smelt like McDonalds.

We carried on. One of the people holding me said I'm going in to get cigarettes... sounds of dishes, people eating and chatting. A short stop and then we went on.

Then I heard a big rush, like air coming out of the ground through a big pipe. They pushed me through a door. And I'm still here.

Please help me, you're the only one who can.